

You know where, we know how

Adventure in Colombia

After flying one hour over a thick jungle, a meandering huge river showed and shortly after that, a nice clearing appeared: we landed on the Amazon, lung of the humanity. Hot and humid weather, sun shining like it wouldn't have an-other day. All kinds of sounds and movements are heard and seen when taking each step — pure nature.

A small town on the multiple border (Peru, Brazil and Colombia) called Leticia was the place to be. An electric plant expansion was about to take place with Conceptum Logistics Colombia as the coordinators of this amazing plan that would from now on avoid electric shut downs to the town's people. The generator that some days ago was beneath snow in Finland, now arrives at this paradise.

Talking about globalization: A Finish generator, Peruvian barges, tug boats and cranes, a Brazilian manager, German booking, a Russian crew captain, a Philippine crew and a Colombian orchestra director...

A challenging work in a challenging place. A town with no tools to work with, all had to be imported. At the end and after several weeks, a job well done. Everything in place and Conceptum Logistics excellence all over.

Conceptum Logistics now has the title of the company that has moved the heaviest cargo in the Colombian Amazon region!

Max. Piece weight: 116,5 tons
Total project: 457 frtons plus 10 SOC
Direct discharge from ocean vessel to Amazonas barge
